

Title: Hypertree Decompositions: Structure, Algorithms, and Applications

Authors: Georg Gottlob, Martin Grohe, Nysret Musliu, Marko Samer, and Francesco Scarcello

Abstract: We review the concepts of hypertree decomposition and hypertree width from a graph theoretical perspective and report on a number of recent results related to these concepts. We also show - as a new result - that computing hypertree decompositions is fixed-parameter intractable.

Martin Grohe